Saving Souls

Sunday, August 11, 2019

Dear friends in Christ,

When Popes (e.g., Pope Saint John Paul II, Pope Benedict XVI [known as “the green Pope” because of his strong focus on the environment and the need to protect it], Pope Francis) speak up forcefully about the dangers of climate change and the need to protect our planet from global warming and pollution, some people ignore them, others listen and prayerfully consider what the Vicar of Christ says, and some complain that they should not talk about such matters at all, but rather focus on “saving souls.”

When the Magisterium teaches officially about economic matters, encouraging us to take a critical look at our system in America, China, Cuba, or Mexico, some tell the bishops they should stick to “religious stuff” and be quiet about economic systems. In his book Crisis in History (1952), The Venerable Fulton J. Sheen wrote: “Both capitalism and socialism are opposite sins against property. Capitalism emphasizes private rights to property without any social responsibility to the common good; socialism emphasizes the social use of property, to the forgetfulness of personal rights. The true solution is one in which the rights to property are personal, but the responsibility is social. A man is free on the inside because he can call his soul his own; he is free on the outside because he can call his property his own.”

More importantly, the Magisterium of the Catholic Church (i.e., the Bishop of Rome in communion with the world’s bishops) over and over again calls us to take a close look at our own heart, country, and business, so that we can avoid the sins Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen condemns — if we truly want to save souls, we don’t want those souls to end up in hell because they have chosen idolatry over the Gospel, greed over goodness, and power over compassion.

“Who, then, is the faithful and prudent steward whom the master will put in charge of his servants to distribute the food allowance at the proper time? Blessed is that servant whom his master on arrival finds doing so. Truly, I say to you, the master will put the servant in charge of all his property. But if that servant says to himself, ‘My master is delayed in coming,’ and begins to beat the menservants and the maidservants, to eat and drink and get drunk, then that servant’s master will come on an unexpected day and at an unknown hour and will punish the servant severely and assign him a place with the unfaithful.” (Luke 12:42-46)

As I mentioned in last week’s bulletin, the people of this parish are a light in the darkness for my spirit, because they take their blessings (e.g., money, talent, time, compassion, intelligence) and put them at the service of the needy in so many ways. However, we are just one parish, and to be a light in the darkness often means getting risking the danger of being extinguished by the winds of anger, indifference, and antireligious sentiment which is very present in our world. As children, teens, and adults, we can each contribute to what Jesus commands in today’s Gospel about stewardship — or not. If we choose to care, we might face mockery and attack as the three Popes have faced, especially when they challenged the status quo.

However, as Catholics we are about saving souls — not saving face.

Decorum in Church

Your Parish Pastoral Council each month meets to discuss how to better serve the people, including recruitment of more volunteers for ministries, and sharing feedback (“Heard In The Pews”) from various members of the community.

One thing we have been asked to gently request is that the faithful prayerfully consider what they wear to Mass on Sundays, and how this might have an impact on those around us.

Our climate is sometimes very warm, but men and women, girls and boys, can still wear their “Sunday best” whenever possible, and especially if they will be serving as Lectors or Eucharistic Ministers during Mass. If you look at our adult choir members, they always dress with care for Sunday worship, and the priest survives the heat even with his usual clothing, plus the white alb, plus the chasuble.

This is a very touchy and delicate subject, and we don’t want to embarrass anyone, but please think about this gentle request — and then ask someone who seems sensible if you are in doubt.

What one person sees as stylish might seem very revealing and distracting to others; what one person considers nicely casual might suggest to others a lack of respect.

Please think about it, pray about it, and ask your (older) trusted relatives or friends about it if you want some healthy feedback.
