Dear parishioners,

Recently I read an article bearing the title, “How Italians became white.” This whole odd notion might be very confusing to our younger people, but for those of us who are older, or who have paid attention to history (especially the history of the United States), it comes as no surprise. Sadly.

As another article on the subject pointed out, “The story of how European immigrants during that era became white enlightens us on our current political realities. Italians, Greeks, Poles, Hungarians, Slavs and other European groups, at the time called ‘new immigrants,’ sought to overcome their subordination by showing, through their behavior, to be deserving of being considered white. In 1911, Henry Pratt Fairchild, an influential American sociologist, said about new immigrants, ‘If he proves himself a man, and … acquires wealth and cleans himself up — very well, we might receive him in a generation or two. But at present he is far beneath us, and the burden of proof rests with him.’ They ultimately met that burden and crucial to their success was that they were not black and they actively helped in maintaining a racist society.” (“White immigrants weren’t always considered white — and acceptable.” By Brandon Starkey, February 10, 2017)

One reason I became Catholic was my belief that our Church was open to people “of every race, language and way of life,” as the Eucharistic Prayer indicates. And not merely open to, but rather composed of, all God’s people. In the beginning the Church faced division between Jews and Gentiles, and had to work this out. Later, the Church had to struggle with the very tempting idea, from Satan (and not from God), that some people are better than others, and thus deserve more respect and better treatment. An antidote to such toxic thinking is the teaching of the Church, the sensible guidance we receive from our parents, and Sacred Scripture, as today:

> “Beloved: Remain faithful to what you have learned and believed, because you know from whom you learned it, and that from infancy you have known the sacred Scriptures, which are capable of giving you wisdom for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for refutation, for correction, and for training in righteousness, so that one who belongs to God may be competent, equipped for every good work. I charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who will judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingly power: proclaim the word; be persistent whether it is convenient or inconvenient; convince, reprimand, encourage through all patience and teaching.” (2 Timothy 3:14)

This past week, we experienced a lot of debate about Columbus Day, but one item from the discussions caught my attention because it was new to me: the celebration of Columbus Day became a big deal in the United States precisely as a way to lift up one immigrant group (Italians), who had been victimized by xenophobia and hatred. Cristoforo Colombo, an Italian, had led Spanish explorers to the New World, and so Italian-Americans found in him a way to celebrate their Italian heritage and Catholic faith, battling the horrible prejudice they had encountered from fellow residents of the United States who looked down on them.

I mention this on World Mission Sunday because it is a reminder that, as Christians, we do well to learn from history, and not make the same mistakes our ancestors made. Saint Paul charges us to “be persistent whether it is convenient or inconvenient,” in showing through word and deed that we know in our hearts that all God’s children are worthy of love and respect.

Otherwise, we desecrate the Body of Christ, which comes in many colors, cultures, and languages.

Recently I checked my own Smile.Amazon.com account and discovered I had “earned” more than a thousand dollars for our parish by simply using this AmazonSmile option: but it’s important to use the correct bookmark, or no charity gets helped.

As our population decreases, this is a great and simple way to help your parish stay in the black!

Many thanks — Father Brown 😊

O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions, but in your mercy hear and answer me. Amen.
